Sommerro, Oslo

LARS PETTER PETERSEN

Sommerro, Oslo, Norway

In Oslo's West End, Sommerro is set to be the Norwegian city's first art-deco hotel. Housed in a former 1930s building, there are 230 rooms, including 56 residences in an adjacent building for guests who want to stay in luxury apartments. Rooms are richly decorated with plush furniture, four-poster beds and marble en-suites with rainfall showers or free-standing baths. The hotel also has two restaurants – serving traditional Nordic cuisine and Japanese-inspired food – as well as a café, wellness area and the city's first rooftop pool.
