The world's most exciting hotel openings for 2022

Make every hotel stay count – here are the best new places to lay your head, from bouji beach settings to cosmopolitan corners

This year's hottest hotel openings are a varied bunch, from bumper-size projects that were half a decade in the making to little island retreats that have quietly cropped up.

Revival is a key theme, with former landmark hotels restored to their former glory on Capri and the Costa del Sol. Unbridled luxury also features with starry openings such as the South of France's Maybourne Riviera and Cali Mykonos. Elsewhere, there's a focus on pared-back stays with a new resort in Thailand attempting to recapture a time before mass tourism.

Here, we look at the world's most anticipated new hotels in a year in which we can truly get excited about travel again.

Sommerro, Oslo

An Art Deco building, formerly home to an electrical company, is set to become Oslo's most exciting hotel this autumn. Sommerro will champion Norwegian culture with a huge fresco from celebrated local artist Per Krohg, who will have several pieces dotted around the hotel. Aiming to be as much for visitors as Oslo residents, the 231-room property will house four restaurants, three bars and even an 100-seat theatre. Meanwhile, up on the roof will be the city's first year-round rooftop pool, sauna, terrace, and restaurant – presumably well-equipped with heaters in winter.
